Houses and Gardens of Southern Tasmania | Summer School in Hobart, Tasmania

Southern Tasmania Houses and Gardens for seniors

Houses and gardens of Southern Tasmania small group course runs for five days and takes in different gardens and heritage-listed houses where you will have the opportunity to step back into the past and experience life as it was two centuries ago.

The gardens for the 2023 are being selected. This itinerary is indicative of the places we aim to visit.

Settlement of Tasmania

Hobart grew slowly from its beginnings as a pioneering encampment until Governor Lachlan Macquarie's visit in 1811, which prompted redevelopment of the area that he had deemed "untidy." Socially, the population changed from soldiers, convicts and criminals, to adventurous colonists and free settlers who formed a nascent "landed gentry" driving wealth and development in the area. During this development, Hobart's gardens which had previously provided sustenance were developed into picturesque masterpieces, culminating in the founding of The Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens in 1818.

The Format for Houses and Gardens

Each day we as a group head out to learn about one of Hobart's leading houses and gardens. The day starts around 9.00am and typically returns mid afternoon each day. The class is limited to 15 participants. This is one of a number of summer school programs offered by Odyssey Traveller Australia.

Below are some of the feedback from our Summer School programs in January 2019:

"Mal was an extraordinary leader in this program about extraordinary women. The depth and breadth of her preparation was amazing and the information book was of publishable quality. The mix of text, documentaries, and various YouTube videos all combined to not only extend our knowledge but kept us focused and interested throughout the course."

"Pav was an outstanding programme leader. His knowledge of plants and Tasmanian gardens is exceptional. His local knowledge and contacts are impressive. At all times he led the group with good humour and tolerance and at all times I felt he was totally in control of the programme. We were very fortunate to have him as our leader.”

“The program was so well organised that each day ran very smoothly. Extraordinary women – extraordinary program!”

“All of the local guides were passionate about their places...Everyone was very proud of Tasmania [and] eager for us to get the most out of our visit.”
